Our Academic Integrity Policy

- It is essential that students submit original work demonstrating their own thoughts, knowledge and skills in all forms of assessment, including examinations, written assignments, portfolios, presentations and in-class exercises.
- When using ideas, opinions, data or text belonging to other authors, institutions or digital sources, it is mandatory to cite them in accordance with the citation rules accepted by the relevant academic discipline.
- It is a fundamental obligation to refrain from copying the work of others, having someone else complete a task or assignment on one's own behalf, or engaging in any form of unethical behaviour that would provide an unfair advantage in the assessment process.

Our Artificial Intelligence Policy

- As the School of Foreign Languages, we regard it as a fundamental value that our students take ownership of the academic work they produce and demonstrate original effort.
- Assignments, exercises, projects and academic work found to have been produced, completed or edited in an unethical manner through the use of artificial intelligence applications will under no circumstances be assessed.
- Accordingly, having assignments, projects or exercises carried out directly by AI applications; submitting text generated or edited by AI without modification as if it were an original piece of work; or submitting work using similar methods is considered a breach of the School of Foreign Languages' principles of academic integrity.
